CCatcher can cycle between a two groups of albums and play tracks. GROUPING: Groups of albums, when assigned, will be played back in sequence, as it were. Each album can be held to a maximum of 64 tracks. If it fails to, repeat what you've done before. If that doesn't work, reset and try again. SSEGAMING: Groups of tracks, when assigned, will be played back in sequence, as it were. The user can choose how many tracks to play at once. Each track can be held to a maximum of 64. This can be done by choosing the number of desired tracks and then assigning each track to the chosen number. QUEUEING: When assigned, each track will be queued, where the user can play or skip tracks in a queue-like fashion. PASTE: Let the user do the copy-and-paste action. MIDI: When assigned, the user can play an MP3 file using the user's default MIDI device (inputs/outputs). TRACKING: Tracks played will track to the current position. If the track or the shuffle is paused, the user can resume it at any point. FLEX: The "flex" or "bending" mode, which is not assigned, allows the user to play music in the "shuffle" mode, but allows skipping or breaking songs. THEME: For those of you familiar with Windows Media Player: CCCatcher will play mp3s based on the playlists I've saved. The default theme (currently) is 'Lost Love'. USING CCCatcher
===== In the example I've provided a MIDI music file (that I often use when performing at events) is being played using MIDI. Conversation: "" To the user: "Play me the user's default MIDI device." To CCCatcher: "Play me the user's default MIDI device." To the user: "Play me the user's default MIDI device." "" To play music: "" To the user: "I'm playing music, because I'm you." To CCCatcher: "I'm playing music, because I'm you." To the 77a5ca646e

Mr. Obama signed Executive Order #13474 on April 17, expanding the background check requirements of the Brady Bill, which was passed by the Congress in 1994. Gun control advocates were hoping for a follow-up to the President's December 2010 executive order, which extended the background checks for purchases of weapons between licensed dealers to include private sales and commercial sales at gun shows. The administration claimed that it had obtained the Senate's approval for the extension, but a Senate Finance Committee staff lawyer and an aide to Sen. Chuck Schumer of New York said it had been vetoed by Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid. The White House maintains that it has the authority to extend the background check requirements for private sales through the actions of an executive order. The action of the President and the Senate seem to contradict the President's earlier declaration that Congress must pass new gun-control legislation in the wake of the December shooting of a teacher and her students at an elementary school in Newtown, Conn., that left 26 dead. The President has signed executive orders on a range of other issues since the Dec. 14 shooting, but he has continued to insist that Congress act. He has not addressed, however, a proposal by some members of Congress to create a federal gun registry. Congressman Sessions told a radio talk show on Friday that the new executive order on gun control, and the other actions by the President, were impeachable. "They've taken what should be a very simple bill and they've hidden a lot of it," he said. "And they've pulled out things that are... they are now making it a much more difficult process
